

The Architectural Art Glass Library & Research Center home of

The Dream

To create a center devoted to the preservation, exploration, development and training of the Craft.

The Stained Glass School is developing a business plan and actively seeking a building to house the center which will become a permanent home for the Stained Glass Association of America. As the plan develops, titles and scope will evolve. We welcome your suggestions and your generous donations, please email permanenthome@sgaonline.com

RESEARCH CENTER

The Stained Glass Association of America holds in archive the Jacoby Studio Collection, The Milwaukee Art Glass Collection, and now the Henry Lee Cook Photography Collection.

LIBRARY

Through the years, members have donated books, reference materials and thousands of slides to the association. The Stained Glass Quarterly has its own archive of magazines, microfilm and collections of other glass journals.

SCHOOL

Hands-on workshops by professionals are vital to the growth and preservation of the traditions and proper training in the new architectural glass techniques. Designing and training for individuals as well as apprentices and craftsmen is a key goal to the future of the craft.
